Thanks to Frank de Lathouder and his extra verse

Thanks to Rick Dobczyk for the update

maybe use [C-2] and [G-2] in the runs?

[NC] Seventy-[G]six trombones led the [D7] big parade
With a hundred and ten cornets close at [G] hand.
They were followed by rows and [G7] rows of the [C] finest virtu-[A7]os
The [G] cream of every famous [D7] band.

Seventy-[G]six trombones caught the [D7] morning sun
With a hundred and ten cornets right be-[G]hind
There were more than a thousand [G7] reeds
Springing [C] up like [A7] weeds
There were [G] horns of [D7] every shape and [G] kind.

There were [C] copper bottom tympani in [G7] horse platoons
Thundering, [B] thundering [C] all along the way.
Double bell euphoniums and [G] big bassoons,
[D7] Each bassoon having its [G] big, fat [G7] say!

There were [C] fifty mounted cannon in the [G7] battery
Thundering, [B] thundering [C] louder than before
Clarinets of every size and [F] trumpeters who'd [B] improvise
A [C] full octave [G] higher than the [C] score! [D7]

Seventy-[G]six trombones paused the [D7] big parade
By the park to hear the ukuleles [G] play
And all of the music [G7] made when [C] they all [A7] played
Is a [G] thing still [D7] talked about to-[G]day.
